Press Release

Etihad Airways Engineering joins hands with AMROS to offer transition CAMO services

MRO Middle East, 1st March 2023
Dubai, UAE

Etihad Airways Engineering, one of the world's leading aviation maintenance, repair and overhaul (MRO) solutions providers, is entering into a collaboration with AMROS Group, the leading Swiss advisor to the worldwide aviation and aerospace industry, at MRO Middle East to offer transition Continuing Airworthiness Management Organisation (CAMO) services to its customers as a part of its comprehensive suite of aircraft maintenance and engineering solutions.

"We aim to deliver one-stop MRO and engineering solutions to airlines, lessors and aircraft owners from around the world. Our collaboration with AMROS will further support our customers in terms of transition CAMO services provided as part of our MRO solutions for aircraft transitions," said Abdul Khaliq Saeed, CEO of Etihad Airways Engineering. "We look forward to a mutually beneficial partnership with AMROS to meet and exceed our customers' expectations," he added.

"As a Fleet Technical Management service provider, it was only a logical step for us to expand into a collaboration with a Part-145 approved MRO. Our partnership with Etihad Airways Engineering is a perfect match to our "expect more" values, vision and our mission to provide only best-in-class services for our international airlines and lessor customers. With our joint forces, we look forward to providing an extra added value to our customers." said Eros Tavani, CEO of AMROS Global.

With the aviation sector on the path to recovery and leased aircraft expected to comprise more than half of the projected total number of 40,000 aircraft in the global market by 2030, the demand for transition CAMO services continues to rise. This collaboration will help aircraft owners get turnkey change-of-lease solutions under one roof at Etihad Airways Engineering, with all transition CAMO requirements managed by AMROS.
